Housing Ireland Conference

Delivering 303,000 new homes by 2030

In November 2024, ahead of the general election, the outgoing government approved a revised delivery target of 303,000 new homes across the State by 2030.

Outlining a pathway to deliver an average of 50,500 homes per annum, rising to 60,000 in 2030 and subsequent years, the then-government described it as a crucial step towards meeting:

1. growing housing need, as per population increases; and
2. existing and ongoing demand for housing.

Now, recognising the housing crisis as “a major social and economic challenge that touches every generation”, the incoming Government has committed to “prioritise a radical step change in housing supply”.

Housing for All is set to be replaced by “a new fully funded, radical and realistic housing plan”, seeking to accelerate the delivery of more than 300,000 new homes by the end of 2030.

Meanwhile, the Report of The Housing Commission, published earlier in mid-2024 – as agreed in Programme for Government 2020 – advocates for a “radical strategic reset of housing policy”.

In this context, the 10th annual Housing Ireland conference will host a range of expert domestic and international speakers who will comprehensively explore the challenges, and tangible opportunities for Ireland’s housing practitioners as they seek to deliver 303,000 by 2030.

Key issues to be examined:

1. Accelerating housing supply
2. New 2030 housing target
3. Innovation in housing delivery
4. European housing policy perspective
5. What the Planning and Development Act 2024 means for residential construction
6. Environmentally sustainable housing
7. Delivering social and affordable housing at scale
8. The role of local authorities in delivering housing
9. Increasing the proportion of social and cost rental housing
10. Delivering social and affordable housing at pace
11. Childcare provision in new housing
12. Housing conditions and integrated care for older people
13. Innovative methods to scale residential construction
14. The Report of The Housing Commission
